FIVE LOSE LIVES IN BALLOON RACE

TWO AMERICAN ARMY AIRMEN ARE VICTIMS

Terrific Storm Breaks Out as James Gordon Bennett Cup Race Is Started

FEARING FOR OTHERS

No Word Is Received of Ten Balloonists Who Got Away in the Race

Brussels, Sept. 24.—Five airmen, including two United States army lieutenants, lost their lives, another was seriously injured and five balloons were smashed on the ground or destroyed by lightning in the James Gordon Bennett cup race which started yesterday under the most adverse weather conditions ever experienced in the race.

The dead: Lieut. Olmstead and Lieut. Chiptaw, of the U. S. army balloon S-6. Lieut. Von Gruningen and Lieut. Wehren of the Swiss balloon Geneva. Lieut. P. B. Area of the Spanish balloon Floar.

In view of the terrific storm which broke out half an hour after the last balloon took off and raged until 10 o'clock, fears are left for the safety of 10 balloonists not heard from. Officials of the Brussels Aero club had said they advocated postponement of the race but found the rules inflexible. They will propose to have them changed to overcome this difficulty. Many members, however, favor cancelling the competition altogether.

The American entrant, the balloon St. Louis, never took the air bursting before the start from pressure of the anchor rope.

The S-6 was caught in the vortex of a terrific southwestern gale in crossing the Belgian frontier, the storm forcing the balloonists to throw out all ballast. When the balloon crashed, the two airmen both were dead. Lieut. Olmstead was killed outright when lightning struck the balloon, while Lieut. Chiptaw died when the S-6 fell, in the opinion of physicians. Lieut. Olmstead's body was found in the bag under the basket, while his companion was about 25 feet away.

STATE SELLS $1,000,000 OF LOAN BONDS

Price Obtained Is Better Than the Last Previous Sale, It Is Announced

Sale of $1,000,000 of real estate series bonds for the farm loan department of the Bank of North Dakota at a price better than the last previous sale was announced today by the state industrial commission.

The bonds, bearing 5 1/4 percent interest, were sold to a Twin City syndicate after bids were asked of bonds houses for par and a premium of $9,000, making the net interest rate 5.17 percent.

The last previous sale brought par and only a very slight premium. Through frequent postponements of action and rejection of many bids the Industrial Commission believes it has saved a great deal of money by making better sales in spite of lack of improvement in the bond market.

The Twin City houses taking the million dollar loan are The Wells-Diary Company, Minnesota Loan and Trust, Lane, Piper and Jaffray, Stacy, Braun and Company, Minneapolis Trust Company.

JUDGMENT IS ENTERED

Van Hook Farmers Get Default Judgment Against Journeen Olson

Default judgment was entered against Journeen Olson, Minot banker, and the U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty Company on the second time in Judge Janson's court today in behalf of N. J. Pierre, assignee of grain storage tickets of 16 farmers of the Van Hook 4 tract.

The plaintiff alleged that storage charges on grain stored in the Van Hook Grain Company owned by Olson were unpaid. Judgment, with interest, totals $17,128.32.

Judgment was entered by plaintiff several months ago but the case remained on request of Olson who had defaulted. A second default brought a second judgment.

TO TALK TO N. Y. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Governor Will Address Annual Banquet on "Spirit Of the Northwest"

155TH ANNIVERSARY HOPES TO ALLAY SUSPICIONS OF NORTH DAKOTA IN EASTERN STATES IN TALK

Governor Nestos has just accepted an invitation to deliver an address at the 155th annual banquet of the New York Chamber of Commerce on November 15th on the "Spirit of the Northwest" giving him an opportunity to present the cause of the northwest to about a thousand of the leading business men of the city of New York.

Governor Nestos has known for some time that there still was a strong prejudice against the state of North Dakota and the securities offered by the state and the various political subdivisions, and that this prejudice was based largely upon lack of information or a mis-conception of the economic and political conditions in the state.

The governor is hoping that by appearing before this very representative body of the active business men of that section of the country, that he may be able to so present the truth about our state, the progress in diversification, our great natural resources and the character and spirit of our people, that this attitude of prejudice may be changed and that it may be possible to open the markets for our bonds and mortgages in the state of New York on a fair interest basis.

Our bond market has improved materially in the west but the west lacks the ability to absorb large issues of bonds and New York is the principal bond market of the country and we will not have a dependable market for our securities until we win that field.

BUY N. D. COAL, DEVELOP STATE, BUY EASTERN COAL, HELP THE EAST

"Spend your money in North Dakota." This is a new slogan of the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' Association.

Money spent in North Dakota coal means development of North Dakota; money spent on eastern coal means development of eastern states, says the operators' association in an advertisement broadcast in the state today. The association declares that North Dakota coal can be used exclusively in North Dakota and is the most satisfactory and economical coal in the state.

O. P. Hood, chief mechanical engineer, U. S. Bureau of Mines, in a letter to Stanley Washburn, president of the coal operators' association, endorses the slogan. With the probability that the supply of anthracite at the head of the lakes will be limited, Mr. Hood points out that in Minnesota and North Dakota many people will make a choice between bituminous and lignite.

"It is very much to the advantage of community to develop a nearby supply of fuel and as a national conservation movement long hauls of fuel from distant fields are to be discouraged," says Mr. Hood. "It is therefore, desirable to use lignite in lignite areas so far as possible and only by trial can the advantages and relative economies be discovered."

Lignite users should put in at least a portion of their winter supply during September, the operators' association says, because every ton of coal bought now for North Dakota means that the mines will have the ability later on to sell North Dakota coal in South Dakota and Minnesota, thereby bringing more money and more employment to the state.

Miner Injured In Explosion

Zap, Sept. 24.—O. G. Neville, employed as coal digger at the Lucky Strike mine was badly injured a week ago Saturday morning. A shot was fired in an adjoining room, going through the wall with a mass of coal hitting Neville. He was taken to a Bismark hospital the same day and an examination showed a broken arm, bruised leg and a gash in his forehead.

GOPHER CHIEF JUSTICE DIES; FOUND IN BED

Death Believed to Have Come Without Pain to Chief Justice C. L. Brown

St. Paul, Sept. 24.—Chief Justice Calvin L. Brown of the Minnesota supreme court was found dead in his bed at his home in Minneapolis this morning by two daughters. It was announced at the state capital today.

The chief justice retired last evening, apparently well. His failure to arise at the usual hour today prompted the daughters to make an investigation. He had apparently passed away during his sleep and without suffering.

Chief Justice Brown was in his chambers Friday and Saturday morning. His associates noticed nothing unusual and were greatly surprised this morning when informed of his sudden death. Flags at the statehouse were lowered to half mast.

Before his election to the chief justiceship in 1912 Judge Calvin L. Brown had served the state for a dozen years as associated judge of the supreme court.

MORLEY, NOTED IN ENGLAND IS HEART VICTIM

Was Avowed Liberal and Rose to High Places in the British Cabinet

FAVORED WITH IRISH Also was Secretary of State For India for Many Years in Cabinet

London, Sept. 24.—Viscount Morley of Blackburn, former ward-president of the council and secretary of state for India died of heart disease.

Successfully mingling letters and statescraft, Viscount Morley attained remarkable eminence in both spheres. In letters he was best known for his biographical studies, such as his lives of Burke, Voltaire, Cobden, Diderot, Cromwell and Gladstone; while in statesmanship his most notable achievements were as Chief Secretary for Ireland in the Gladstone "Home Rule Cabinet," and later as Secretary of State for India.

His practical retirement from public life came only when he was seventy-seven years old—shortly after the outbreak of the European war. He was then Lord President of the Council in the Asquith Cabinet, and was one of the older men to give way to the popular clamor for younger men in less partisan men during the European crisis.

As a landmark in British politics he was a most pronounced liberal, and one of the most interesting incidents of his career is the fact that after years of denunciation of the House of Lords as an institution that should be either "manned or ended," he himself was elevated to the peerage in 1908 and took a seat in that august body. He continued, however, to be one of the most active leaders in the reform movement which curbed the power of the Lords through the Veto Bill.

Viscount Morley was born as John Morley, the son of a surgeon at Blackburn, Lancashire, Eng., December 24, 1838. He was educated at Cheltenham college and afterwards at Lincoln college, Oxford.

When Gladstone formed what is known as the Home Rule Cabinet in 1880, Mr. Morley became Chief Secretary for Ireland. His sympathies were strongly with the Irish and during his entire administration he fought shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Gladstone for Home Rule and up many other instances the two cooperated. The title of Gladstone which Mr. Morley produced more than fifteen years later has been regarded by some as his most notable book.

Serving again as Secretary for Ireland from 1892 to 1905, Mr. Morley, a few years later, was appointed to the still more responsible post of Secretary of State for India, in the Campbell-Bannerman cabinet. It was largely due to his sagacious policy that difficulties in the administration of India during the Viceroyalty of Lord Curzon were smoothed out. The mere fact that Mr. Morley was the most distinguished statesman who had ever been called upon to preside over the destinies of India had a salutary effect at a time when there was great unrest. Throughout his five years at the head of the India office, he had to deal with such perplexing problems as partition of Bengal, the relative status of military and civil authorities in the scheme of Indian government; and he had to wind up the negotiations that followed on the expedition to Tibet.

FOUR DIE AS TRAIN STRIKES FARMER'S CAR

Northern Pacific Train Cashes Into Car Near Almont Late Saturday

FUNERAL AT MANDAN

Mandan, Sept. 24.—Funeral services at 2 o'clock this afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. R. Thatcher of this city, at the Kennedy chapel for four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Axt, McClusky, N. D., Herbert, 10; Irving, 8; Robert, 9; and Emanuel, 18 months, twice interment, taking place in the local cemetery closed a grim chapter in the life of the family.

Herbert, Robert and Emanuel, were instantly killed and Irving died within half an hour about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Northern Pacific train No. 4 struck the automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Axt and seven sons westbound for California at a crossing 2 1/2 miles west of Almont.

The car, a Ford was cut in half and the half dozen boys in the rear seat thrown many yards.

The victims were: Johan Axt, father, had hand and injured knee; Mrs. Axt, bruised shoulder, minor cuts; Herbert, 10, instantly killed; Joseph, 9, fractured skull, internal injuries, may live; Harold, 7, injured hip; Irving, 8, died of injuries; Robert, 9, instantly killed; Emanuel, 18 months, instantly killed; Andrew, 3 months, only member of family, unhurt.

Axt farmed near McClusky for the last 19 years. For some time he had been a poor man and a cousin, Andrew Axt, came to his rescue. Andrew bought Johan a car and Johan, started west to California, his cousin, paying the expenses. Morton county is paying funeral expenses. Andrew was following in an automobile.

Four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Axt, living near McClusky, N. D., were killed and two others and the parents were injured when a Northern Pacific train struck their automobile at a grade crossing near Almont, N. D., 4 1/2 miles west of Mandan late Saturday.

The dead: Herbert, 10 years old; Robert, 9; Emanuel, 18 months; Irving, 8.

The latter died on the way to a Mandan hospital. The others were killed instantly.

Joseph, aged 9, suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs and internal injuries, which physicians fear will prove fatal.

Mr. Axt was cut about the hands and injured a knee. His wife was injured about the shoulders and was cut. Harold, aged 7, injured his hip. A three months old baby, which Mrs. Axt held in her arms, escaped virtually unhurt.

Axt recently sold his farm near McClusky and was taking his family to California when the accident occurred.

Axt has a defective right eye and apparently did not see the train. He slowed up for the crossing and then started up again, applying the brakes suddenly when his wife screamed.

Stop Cashed Crash. Had he not thrown on the brakes, witnesses said he would have been able to clear the tracks in time to miss the train. The engine of the last train out of the rear of the automobile and the children were hurled for many yards.

The track at the scene of the accident is visible for a long distance. Axt said he did not see the train, "that when my wife yelled for me to stop, I threw on the brakes."

The injured and dead were taken to Mandan on the train and the injured placed in Deaconess hospital. Andrew Axt, a cousin of Johan Axt, and his wife were following the ill-fated car in another machine. They witnessed the tragedy and aided in rendering first aid to the injured.

COOLIDGE IN HIGH PRAISE OF RED CROSS

Is Practical Application of High Ideal of America, President Says

IDEA IS VERY OLD

Principle Is Modern Application of Ancient Principle of Charity, He Says

Washington, Sept. 24.—A "deep faith in the spiritual things tempered by the hard common sense adapted to the needs of the world is the kind of practical idealism that is represented in the history of America," President Coolidge said today in an address before the annual convention of the American Red Cross. The people, he added, are not likely to adopt any other course.

The idealism of which he spoke, the president said, was illustrated by the men who went to the rescue of Europe when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was at peril but who after victory was assured retired from the field "unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unthought."

President Coolidge's address, his first formal utterance, was devoted to praise of the equality which had made the Red Cross a success. Chief among these, he said, was its practical idealism.

An Ancient Principle. The American Red Cross is a modern application of an ancient principle," the President said. "The idea of charity is very old. It is included in the teachings of the earliest philosophers. It is one of the fundamental doctrines of our Bible period. It is a spiritual conception of human relationship. It is life in obedience to the things that are unseen."

Throughout history men have been prone to put their trust in other things that have failed. They have sought for power through material resources alone. They have thought that it might be gained through accumulation of great riches. They have attempted to rely upon the naked force of armies and navies, conquering by the might of the sword. But these forces are not the ultimate rulers of mankind. They are necessary for security as police, and criminal courts and bolts and bars are necessary. But they are negative forces. They do not create; they resist. They are not the ultimate force in the world. They do not make the final determinations among men. Over them all is a higher power.

Cannot Discard Use. "Mankind has not, cannot yet, discard the use of these forces. It is significant, however, that the great nations have at least agreed upon their limitation. But it is even more significant that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force. It is because the Red Cross has been a process of application of this principle that it has been such a tremendous success. It makes its appeal for support directly to the conscience of mankind. It does not attempt to function through the direct action of organized government. It does not have in its element, of compulsion. It is the voluntary offerings of the people themselves. Whenever and wherever an emergency has resulted in human suffering to the extent of its ability to administer whatever may be necessary for temporary relief.

"It is in this direction that there lies a hope of real progress. The ancient ideal of human brotherhood of service, the application of the golden rule of peace on earth and good will toward men are not idle dreams."

Fleas Not To Be Protected In England

London, Sept. 24.—Performing fleas on the English stage—in fact all fleas whose lives are consecrated to the drama—must go through their acts without the possibility of protection in the case of maltreatment.

This slight to the fleas is contained in an anti-flea clause of the government's new Performing Animals Bill which has passed the committee stage in the House of Commons.

When the question was debated, it was decided that reptiles and fish should be included but fleas must fight their battles alone. An amendment was carried to this effect.

The real reason for the discrimination was that the difficulty of using the fleas as evidence.

Military Court Hears More Testimony Upon Outrages Committed by the Klan

Oklahoma City, Sept. 24.—A statement declaring that 90 percent of the Oklahoma National Guard are members of the Ku Klux Klan and that "all that would be necessary to stop martial law in Oklahoma would be for N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm of the Klan, to call out Klan members of the guard" was issued today by Dr. G. S. Long, state representative from Tulsa county.

Dr. Long, an admitted member of the Klan, made it plain however that such action would not be taken by leaders of the organization.

"The Klan oath is a dedication of a man's loyalty to the constitution of the United States, the government of Oklahoma and the government of the United States," he asserted, "and so long as Governor Walton exercises his authority as Governor of Oklahoma Klan members of the guard will remain loyal to the order of their commander-in-chief."

Mandan, Sept. 24.—Funeral services at 3 o'clock this afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. H. Thatcher of this city, at the Kennedy chapel for four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Axt, McClusky, N. D. Herbert, 10; Irving, 5; Robert, 3 and Emanuel, 18 months, with interment taking place in the local cemetery closed a grim chapter in the life of the family.

Herbert, Robert and Emanuel were instantly killed and Irving died within half an hour about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Northern Pacific train No. 4 struck the automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Axt and seven sons westbound for California at a crossing 2 1/2 miles west of Almont.

Axt farmed near McClusky for the last 10 years. A foreclosure recently rendered him destitute and a cousin, Andrew Axt, came to his rescue. Andrew bought Johan a car and Johan, started west to California, his cousin, paying the expenses. Morton county is paying funeral expenses. Andrew was following in an automobile.

Four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Johan Axt, living near McClusky, N. D., were killed and two others and the parents were injured when a Northern Pacific train struck their automobile at a grade crossing near Almont, N. D. 42 miles west of Mandan late Saturday.

The dead: Herbert, 10 years old; Robert, 3; Emanuel, 18 months; Irving, 5.

The latter died on the way to a Mandan hospital. The others were killed instantly. Joseph, aged 9, suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs and internal injuries, which physicians fear will prove fatal.

Mr. Axt was cut about the hands and arms by a wheel. His wife injured about the shoulders and was cut. Harold, aged 7, injured his hip. A three month old baby, which Mrs. Axt held in her arms, escaped virtually unhurt.

Axt recently sold his farm near McClusky and was taking his family to California when the accident occurred. Axt has a defective right eye and apparently did not see the train. He slowed up for the crossing and then started up again, applying the brakes suddenly when his wife screamed.

Stop Caused Crash.
Had he not thrown on the brakes, witnesses said he would have been able to clear the tracks in time to miss the train. The engine of the fast train cut off the rear of the automobile and the children were hurled for many yards.

The track at the scene of the accident is visible for a long distance. Axt said he did not see the train, "but when my wife yelled for me to stop, I threw on the brakes." The injured and dead were taken to Mandan on the train and the injured placed in Deaconess hospital. Andrew Axt, a cousin of Johan Axt, and his wife were following the ill-fated car in another machine. They witnessed the tragedy and aided in rendering first aid to the injured.

COOLIDGE IN HIGH PRAISE OF RED CROSS

Is Practical Application of High Ideal of America,
President Says

IDEA IS VERY OLD

Principle Is Modern Application of Ancient Principle of Charity, He Says

Washington, Sept. 24.—A deep faith in the spiritual things tempered by the hard common sense adapted to the needs of the world is the kind of practical idealism that is represented in the history of America, President Coolidge said today in an address before the annual convention of the American Red Cross. The people, he added, are not likely to adopt any other course. The idealism of which he spoke, the president said, was illustrated by the men who went to the rescue of Europe when their own liberty and the liberty of the world was at peril but who after victory was secured retired from the field "unencumbered by spoils, independent, unattached and unbought."

President Coolidge's address, his first formal utterance, was devoted to praise of the equality which had made the Red Cross a success. Chief among these, he said, was its practical idealism.

An Ancient Principle

The American Red Cross is an ancient application of an ancient principle," the President said. "The idea of charity is very old. It is included in the teachings of the earliest philosophers. It is one of the fundamental doctrines of our Bible period. It is a spiritual conception of human relationship. It is life in obedience to the things that are unseen."

Throughout history men have been prone to put their trust in other things that have failed. They have sought for power through material resources alone. They have thought that it might be gained through accumulation of great riches. They have attempted to rely upon the naked force of armies and navies, conquering by the might of the sword. But these forces are not the ultimate rulers of mankind. They are necessary for security as police and criminal courts and bolts and bars are necessary. But they are negative forces. They do not create; they resist. They are not the ultimate force in the world. They do not make the final determinations among men. Over them all is a higher power.

Cannot Discard Use

"Mankind has not, cannot yet, discard the use of these forces. It is significant, however, that the great nations have at least agreed upon their limitation. But it is even more significant that civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force. It is because the Red Cross has been a practical application of that principle that it has been such a tremendous success. It makes its appeal for support directly to the conscience of mankind. It does not attempt to function through the direct action of organized government. It does not have in it any element of compulsion. It is the voluntary offerings of the people themselves. Whenever and wherever an emergency has resulted in human sufferings to the extent of its ability it administers whatever may be necessary for temporary relief.

"It is in this direction that there lies a hope of human progress. The ancient ideal of human brotherhood of service, the application of the golden rule of peace on earth and good will toward men are not idle dreams."

Fleas Not To Be Protected In England

London, Sept. 24.—Performing fleas on the English stage—in fact all fleas whose lives are consecrated to the drama—must go through their acts without the possibility of protection in the case of maltreatment. This slight to the fleas is contained in an anti-flea clause of the government's new Performing Animals Bill which has passed the committee stage in the House of Commons. When the question was debated, it was decided that "reptiles and fish should be included but fleas must fight their battles alone. An amendment was carried to this effect. The real reason for the discrimination was that the difficulty of using the fleas as evidence.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 24.—A statement declaring that 90 percent of the Oklahoma National Guard are members of the Ku Klux Klan and that "all that would be necessary to stop martial law in Oklahoma would be for N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm of the Klan, to call out Klan members of the guard" was issued today by Dr. G. S. Long, state representative from Tulsa county.

Dr. Long, an admitted member of the Klan, made it plain however that such action would not be taken by leaders of the organization.

"The Klan oath is a redefinition of a man's loyalty to the constitution of Oklahoma, the constitution of the United States, the government of Oklahoma and the government of the United States," he asserted, "and so long as Governor Walton exercises his authority as Governor of Oklahoma Klan members of the guard will remain loyal to the order of their commander-in-chief."

Dean of Nova Scotia Says Knowledge of Religion Is Uplifting Influence

LATENT FEELING

Yearning For a Fuller Life Is Best Satisfied Through Expression of Religion

Chicago, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press)—To lead your brother to the conviction that the church of Christ is the true home of his spiritual life is a mission that will quench the thirst of man for a fuller life, and ease the thousands who realize that both they and the world need a lifting power, yet are unable to articulate or to define it in words, said the very Rev. J. P. Lloyd, Dean of Nova Scotia, at the keynote meeting tonight of the international convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The speaker shared the opening program with the Hon. Franklin Spencer, Edmonds of Philadelphia, two leaders in the Episcopal church, upon the subject of the consecrated man's vision of service.

In an age which is calling for personality and reverence for Christ, and bemoaning the dead average of manhood, Rev. Mr. Lloyd asserted that the passionate hunger for life existing everywhere has its fulfillment in Him close at hand.

"The age is full of latent religiousness, yet this yearning stands unrelated to the church, it is individualistic, not sensible of its corporate implications," the speaker said. "The church is challenged in this time of mad chase for excitement such as it has never known since the Crusades. There is a passion for life, more and fuller. This is the explanation of the unrest of labor, it is seeking for fuller chance of development. The moving pictures, the speeding motor car, the aeroplane, all mean that men are waking to the sense of new powers, he is craving for more life.

"Thousands of men in the street are seeking something, realizing that both they and the world need a lifting power, yet unable to articulate or to define it in words. To lead the next man as a brother to the conviction that the church of Christ is the true home of his spiritual life, where prayer and worship and sacrament will feed it and bring it to the blossom of service, that is the churchman's mission to satisfy the craving."

Background, interpretation and aspiration, the fundamentals of the artists, roughly can be likened to the work of life, continued Rev. Mr. Lloyd, the background of which is Christian civilization.

"This background, a civilization blossoming with flowers of virtue and achievement, also is the first point in the consecrated man's vision of service, the vision of past sacrifice and present privilege won by his forebears under the leadership of Christ.

"Then there is also a latent religiousness. The man outside the church is feeling the stir of the spirit within. He knows that his problems cannot be solved except on religious principles of some kind. "Too, there is growing up among us a new value for personality. The idea of the world as a factory for turning out human beings all of one sized make-up is passing. A new respect for man as an individual and a new sense of his powers and possibilities is being born. They key to the coming era is to be personal service.

GOVERNOR NESTOS SETS SUNDAY FOR RED CROSS OBSERVANCE

Governor R. A. Nestos, in a proclamation issued today, sets aside Sunday, Sept. 30, as Red Cross Sunday. In his proclamation Gov. Nestos gives many examples of the wonderful work carried on by the Red Cross, praising especially their ability to carry on during peace times when there is no wave of patriotism to spur them on.

The proclamation follows:
Red Cross Sunday
The American Red Cross has proven its efficiency and great value to the world in the solution of many difficult relief problems.

Our first thought is naturally of the wonderful service rendered by this organization and its faithful workers during the awful days of the World War when its ministers of mercy brought relief, hope, renewal of strength and a revived spirit to millions of boys at the battle front. This great service renewed the faith of other millions in the essential soundness and responsiveness of the heart of the American people.

But great as was the service of this organization during the terrible ordeal of the World Conflict, the real proof of its character, its possibilities for continued service and the need of maintaining its strength, does not come from the evidence of its war labors, when spurred on by a strong wave of patriotism, but rather from the more quiet and unassuming way in which effective and prompt relief has been given in almost every part of the world when great disasters have overtaken cities or large sections of the country. We especially remember today the awful catastrophe in Japan destroying in a single day hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property and the life and health of populations as large as that of our own state, and how the Red Cross came with its efficient organization and brought immediate and continued relief until the worst results of the disaster had been removed or counteracted.

Whereas, I am confident that it is the desire of the people of the American Red Cross should at all times have a large membership in the state to which it may appeal for workers in raising funds and in giving relief, and

Whereas, the annual state Roll Call for the pledging of these members comes between the first and fifteenth of October.

Now, Therefore, I, R. A. Nestos, Governor of the state of North Dakota do hereby designate Sunday, September, 30, 1923
as

and urge upon the churches of our state that the sermons and exercises on that day be devoted especially to the thought of mercy and Christian charity and the importance of maintaining our splendid Red Cross organization as a concrete expression of the Christian charity we all profess, and thus instill a spirit that shall insure the success of the coming Roll Call.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state of North Dakota at the capital at Bismarck this 21st day of September, A. D. 1923.

FINE SHIPPER IF POTATOES GO UNMARKED

Minnesota Grower Pays $1,500 for Failure to Observe Legal Rule

TAG EACH SACK

Law That Containers Must Be Marked Being Rigidly Enforced

Fargo, Sept. 24.—Farmers and potato shippers of this state are subject to fine under both state and federal laws for failure to tag or mark the weight on sacks containing potatoes. This is the declaration made today by A. H. Benton, marketing specialist at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

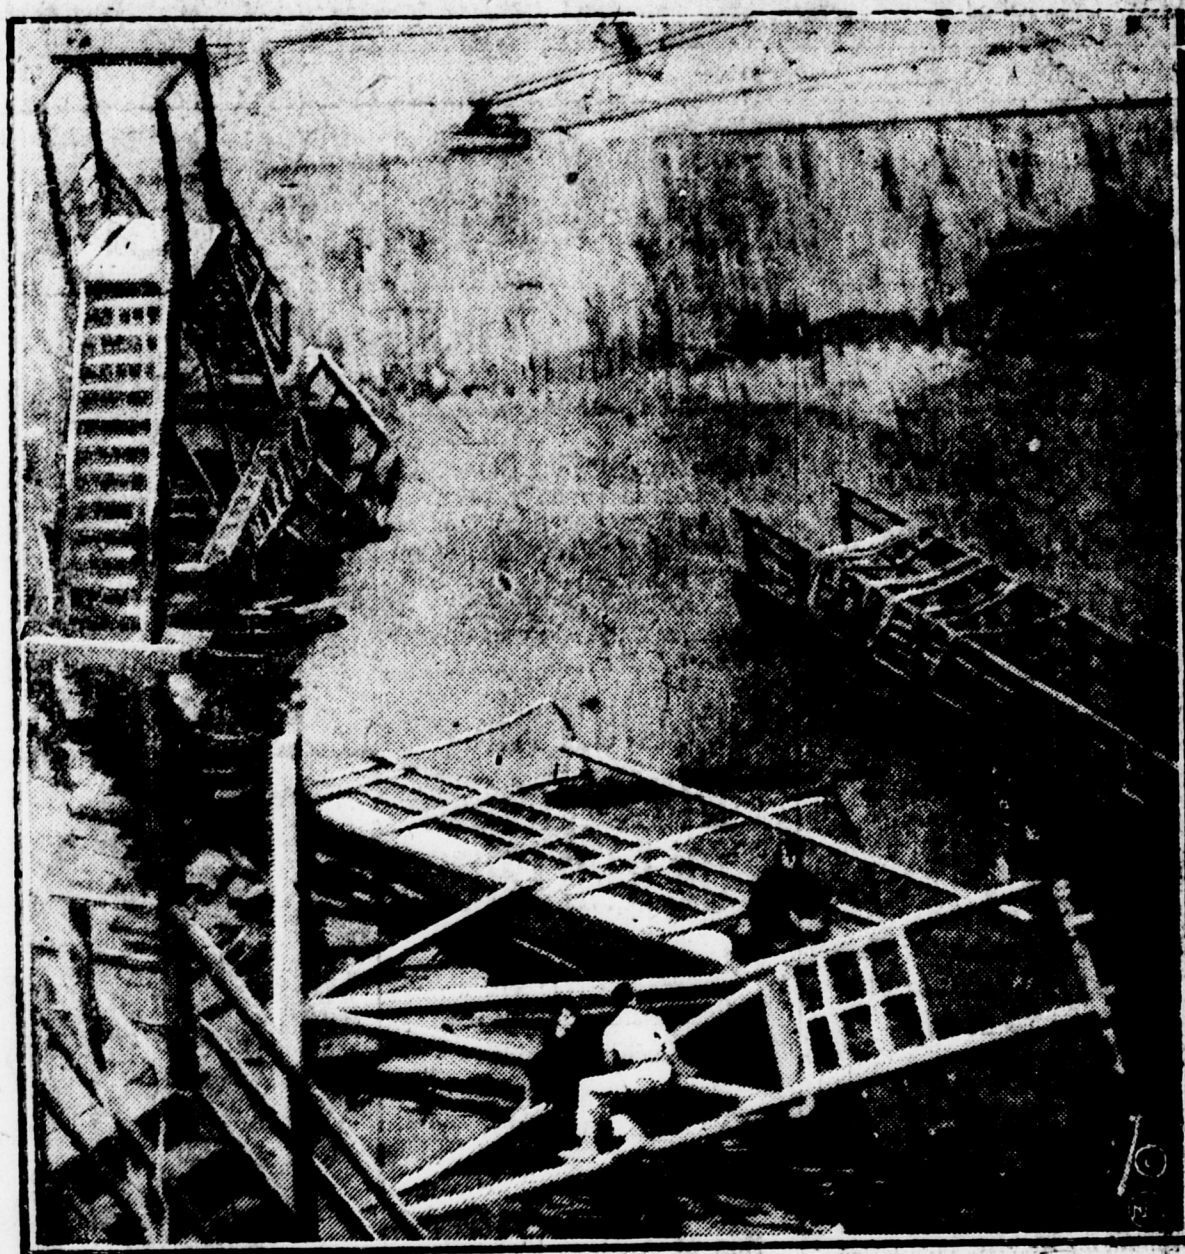

This warning was issued to North Dakota shippers following confirmation of runners that potato shippers were being fined or were liable to fine for neglecting to tag their sacks with the weight. The seriousness of the situation was brought to the attention of Mr. Benton when he learned that a Minnesota shipper had been heavily fined for this violation of the rule. It is alleged that this shipper was fined the sum of $1500.

Confirmation of the existence of the law and liability to fine, Mr. Benton wired authorities at Washington, D. C. and received a reply from Mr. Dunbar, acting chief chemist of the Bureau of Chemistry, which enforces the Federal Food and Drug Act. Mr. Dunbar's reply was that potatoes in sacks of uniform quantity should be marked with a plain, conspicuous statement either by stencil on bag or by attached tag. This statement should plainly show the net weight of the contents of the sack. If sacks were not of uniform quantity, however, and obviously could not hold the same net weight of potatoes and where content and product are invoiced and sold by weight rather than by the sack, no marking is required.

Law Is Clear
The federal law, in the above interpretation, clearly designates that all sacks of uniform capacity should be plainly marked.

Mr. R. O. Baird, state food commissioner stationed at Fargo, stated today that he had completed a long distance call to Harry Runkel, chief of the Minneapolis station of the Federal Food and Drug Act, and that Mr. Runkel had confirmed the report that some shippers had been fined but he added that in the main the shippers were endeavoring to comply with the law.

Strict compliance with the law was urged by Mr. Runkel and he explained the necessity of marking whether by stencil or by tag, all sacks which were apparently of the same size. The law aims to protect consumers from shippers who fill sacks with widely ranging weights of potatoes. Some sacks may weigh seventy-five pounds and others 150 pounds. If sacks are of the same color and approximately the same size it is difficult to distinguish the difference in the net contents unless the sacks are tagged or marked in some manner. This is a part of the net weight law and consumers are of late clamoring for its enforcement.

Mr. Benton, the marketing specialist at the college, explains the rigid enforcement of the law as being brought about by the consumers in the larger cities who are demanding that the net weight law be strictly enforced. And the federal commissioners, in response to this demand from consumers, are compelling rigid compliance.

Tag Each Sack

"Farmers of this state will be on the safe side if they tag each sack with its weight so that no dispute can arise," said Mr. Benton. "This is not necessary, of course, where the potatoes are shipped in bulk or in such containers that there is obviously no chance for the weight to be misunderstood. But it is safer to tag all sacks and avoid any misunderstanding that might arise."

It is reported that local dealers have heard of the cases of some shippers who have been fined for non-compliance with the net weight law. R. F. Gunkelman, of the Interstate Grain and Feed Co., stated that the consumers and dealers in Chicago and other large cities were doubtless demanding the enforcement of the law and he advised all farmers or shippers to plainly label or tag each sack with its net weight.

Greece Returns Bulgarian Land

Athens, Sept. 24.—As an assurance of its desire to cultivate friendly relations with Bulgaria under the new regime, the Greek government has notified the provincial authorities that all Bulgarians interned, on Aegean islands from Western Thrace

during the operations of the war with Turkey, must be returned to their original homes.

The restoration of all seized properties of these interned inhabitants, on no more direct proof than the testimony of their neighbors, has also been ordered.

All Bulgarians who have fled from Western Thrace will also be permitted to return to their homes, and their properties, which have been seized by military authorities or by deserters, will be restored on the same conditions as those of the inhabitants now released from internment.

It is estimated that these orders of restitution affect between 150,000 and 200,000 persons.

Peking, China, Sept. 24.—China has replied evasively to the demands presented by the diplomatic corps as a result of the Lanchow band outrage last May when foreigners, including Americans, were kidnapped and detained in the Shantung hills for weeks. ## MANDAN MEN AGITATE FOR CLOSED SEASON

Propose to Open Hunting Season Every Other Year—County License Suggested

Several Morton county hunters will propose to the next legislature that the prairie chicken and grouse season be closed every other year or a county hunting license bill passed, according to word from Mandan today.

The agitation has followed "hard luck" of Morton county hunters in seeking prairie chickens this year. Morton county has been known as a fine place to hunt grouse. The new bridge across the Missouri resulted in 200 automobile loads of people from Bismarck and other places crossing to Morton county Sunday, the Morton county hunters assert.

The automobile, enabling hunters to travel great distances, threatens the extermination of the grouse, the Morton county men claim.

The county license would keep many hunters from other counties flocking there and keep the hunting grounds for Mandan and Morton county people, they believe. Or a closed season every other year would result in an increase in the grouse, they say.

On the Bismarck side there is new agitation for the duck season being closed until October 1, because of the large number of ducks shot on the opening days before the duck is considered fine eating. One hunter decoys said the local ducks act as decoys for northern ducks which come later, and if the local ducks are scared away, it will make shooting of migratory birds more difficult.

As a special inducement to buy a range during the exhibit of the Great Majestic Range at the store of Sorenson Hardware Co., this week, every purchaser of one of these famous ranges gets his choice of two fine cooking sets free. We have a presentiment that there are going to be many fine new Majestic Ranges in the kitchens of our neighbors and friends before the week is over. The temptation to own a Majestic is irresistible when one learns the facts about Great Majestic in its relations to economy in the home; many will find themselves saying it's no use to put up with an old range any longer.

PRISONERS IN ESCAPE

The prisoners were Harry Gibson, 22, and Russell Doyle, 22, both held for the next grand jury on a charge of grand larceny.

PROPOSE TO ERECT STATUE ON BORDER

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—Erection at some point of the Mexican-American frontier of a statue of Abraham Lincoln and Benito Juarez, clasping hands as a symbol of international friendship, has been proposed to Professor Jose Vasconcelos, secretary of public instruction, by American students attending the summer school of the University of Mexico.

The cost of the monument would be defrayed by small subscriptions from American and Mexican school children. Among the inscriptions suggested for the memorial are parts of the sentence from Lincoln's Gettysburg address beginning "With malice toward none" and one of the Mexican liberator's most famous epigrams: "Respect for others' rights means peace."

FIRE CAUSES $50,000 LOSS

Forest Fires Feared From Fire Which Strikes Near Bemidji

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 24.—Ten-thirty, a village 19 miles north of here, is being swept by fire today and fire fighters have been sent to help fight the flames which threaten the entire village.

Two large stores, a state bank and two garages had been destroyed approximately $50,000.

The flames are still raging and with a high wind menacing the village fire brands have been carried into the nearby woods. Forest rangers of this district have been summoned to help check the fires which have started in the wooded areas.

Overland's "Buck" Back From Fairs

The bucking Overland Car was driven back to Bismarck last Saturday evening "still bucking" according to Mr. Barney, Wholesale Traveler for the Lahr Motor Sales Company, who has been showing the bucking Overland at the Slope fairs.

"We first showed the bucking Overland at Lincoln," said Mr. Barney, "and it made such a hit that we decided to show at Mandan, after which I think the management of every fair in this part of the state urged us to show at their fair, including McIntosh, S. D."

"And while you're bucking about it," said Mr. Barney, "we've bucked this same Overland car thirty-six times at various fairs without one thing about the car giving away except to blow out a tire at Dickinson."

"Anyone who saw this car buck and plunge—throwing off some of the best riders in this country knows what a terrific strain it withstood, and not to break one single part—not even a spring—has certainly demonstrated the kind of stuff the Overland is made of. Some may think the car was built especially for this work, but anyone of a dozen men in our organization will testify that the car was picked out of stock, the touring body taken off and the improvised horse built onto the chassis."

"I just want to add that Howard Hendrickson, who drove out bucking Overland deserves a lot of credit for his ability as a driver and for the terrific "bumps" he took. Howard had to be tied in the car in order to drive it."

STATE BARRED IN COLLECTING RAILROAD TAX

Great Northern and Northern Pacific Roads Obtain a Restraining Order

Fargo, Sept. 24.—Judge Andrew Miller today issued a restraining order preventing the state of North Dakota from collecting more than $60,000 income tax for 1922 from the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroad companies pending adjudication of the dispute by three federal judges who will be named soon by Judge Sanborn. The order was issued on petition of the two railroads. The taxes against the Northern Pacific are $32,026.80 and against the Great Northern $28,756.00. The railroads base their claim of tax exemption on the ground that they had no taxable income in North Dakota during 1922.

Dr. Ryerson Discusses Subject at Noon Luncheon of the Organization

The Kiwanis club today listened to a fine address by Rev. Joseph Ryerson, who spoke on the subject "The Man Who Came Back."

Rev. Ryerson used this subject to discuss Turkey and the Near East, going deeply into the decline of Turkey during the World war and to her new rise to a position of importance in eastern Europe.

"Dutch" Houser spoke upon the high school football prospects. During his talk Coach Houser emphasized that there are no "triggers" on the Bismarck squad. Every player is a bona fide student and must keep up in his studies to play, he said.

Dr. J. O. Arnsen presided. George Harris gave the birthday talk on C. H. De Wall, manager of the Woolworth store and Eric Thorberg told North-Lumry's history on the occasion of his anniversary.

The club members contributed to a fund to help send two Indian War Mothers to the national convention at Kansas City. Jack Parkinson won the attendance prize.

It was announced that the formal presentation of the Kiwanis charter, which is expected to bring Kiwanis officials and members from many cities and towns, will be on October 8.

That the modern way to sell goods is to let the buyer know all about them, is well illustrated at the demonstration of the Majestic Range in the store of Sorenson Hardware Co. all this week. An expert from the factory is showing how the Majestic has won its reputation through its rugged construction, heating seams, perfect damper and draft control, fine, permanent finish, and other characteristics. A fine set of cooking utensils, the choice of two sets, is being given away free, with every range purchased during the week.

Famous London Novel Dramatized

How hard must a cultured and refined society girl of the "cold-blooded" type be shocked to take the prudishness out of her? How much of the primitive he-man do women in the "like to 4-2" in their mates?

It's an interesting question that would involve hours of discussion, but the time would be wasted since a clear picture of the whole question comes to the Capitol theatre tonight when the Universal-Jewel special production, "The Aysmal Brute," will be shown.

"The Aysmal Brute" is Jack London's famous novel of the squared circle in which Reginald Denny stars for the screen, with Mabel Julienne Scott as his leading lady. It is a Hobart Henley production, which promises a good deal in view of Henley's family classic, which is a remarkable screen success.

YEGGS FAIL IN EFFORT TO ENTER VAULT

Make-Small Banks in Simen, McHenry County, Before Being Frightened

Minot, N. D., Sept. 24.—Four or five bandits, traveling in a large touring car, early this morning made an unsuccessful attempt to enter the vault of the First State Bank of Simen in McHenry county, southeast of Minot, stole about $9 in small change, from the till of the institution, robbed the till of the Great Northern depot there of approximately $30 and fled from the city after firing shots at P. L. Thurston, Great Northern agent, who was arousing the citizens to tell them of the raid. Thurston was uninjured.

The robbery at the depot took place previous to the attempt to enter the bank vault, in the belief of the cashier of the bank. All telephone and telegraph wires leading out of the city were cut.

Only one shot was fired at the raiders this being fired by the cashier, who thought that he hit one as it was dark. He fired in the general direction of the bank and it is believed the discharged threatened the robbers who immediately fled.

The yeggs went about robbing the bank in a systematic manner. One of them visited the home of W. H. Bitter, a storekeeper, and asked if he had a married man. Bolter replied he was.

"Well we are going to rob this bank and you had better keep your nose at home," Bolter says the man told him. Bolter remained at home.

L. Thurston, Great Northern agent, who was arousing the citizens to tell them of the raid. Thurston was uninjured.

The robbery at the depot took place previous to the attempt to enter the bank vault, in the belief of the cashier of the bank. All telephone and telegraph wires leading out of the city were cut.

Only one shot was fired at the raiders this being fired by the cashier. He thought that he hit anyone as it was dark. He fired in the general direction of the bank and it is believed the discharged threatened the robbers who immediately fled.

The yeggs went about robbing the bank in a systematic manner. One of them visited the home of W. H. Bolter, a storekeeper, and asked him if he was a married man. Bolter replied he was.

"Well we are going to rob this bank and you had better keep your nose at home," Bolter says the man told him. Bolter remained at home.

NIGHT SCHOOL AT PEN OPENS

Place School on Basis of Grade School of the City Schools

The night school at the state penitentiary has been entirely reorganized under the direction of Mrs. Alfred Zuger, chairman of the illiteracy commission of women's clubs of the state and M. L. Holden, supervisor, with the opening of the fall term this week. An enrollment of 70 has been reached up to the present time.

The school has been placed on a par with the graded schools of the city. Three classes are being conducted in arithmetic, including first year, intermediate, and advanced arithmetic; geography, grammar, literature, English, penmanship, reading, spelling, history, bookkeeping, and classes in illiteracy.

All the instructors except one are inmates at the penitentiary, most of whom have college educations. Miss Madge Runey, county superintendent, teaches the classes in English and literature.

The night school comes under the direction of H. L. Holden, chief deputy, who has charge of the commissary department. John J. Lee, new warden, has placed himself on record by approving all methods by which the night school might be improved. An extension of the hours for the classes from 7 to 8:30 o'clock in the evening to 7 to 10 o'clock has been asked by a unanimous vote of the students.

As a result of the keen interest displayed by the students the night school has been in operation during the entire summer, stopping but for a single week's vacation. Classes are conducted on Tuesday and Friday nights and Sunday morning.

MRS. PANNELL GIVES FACTS AFTER 2 YEARS

"Tanlac made me active and vigorous just like I used to be," said Mrs. Hilda Pannell, 7 Lakeside Ave., N. Minneapolis, Minn.

"Two years ago, before I took Tanlac, I had such a poor appetite I simply had to force myself to eat and often the sight of food would nauseate me. Everything I ate caused indigestion, gas, bloating, palpitation and awful pains. My nerves were so unstrung I couldn't sleep and I was so rundown I could hardly do my housework."

"Tanlac soon had me built up so I could do my housework without feeling tired. I relished my food and it agreed with me. This summer I took Tanlac again, as I commenced to feel a little tired out and nervous. Tanlac is the favorite medicine at our house, and I've recommended it to many of my friends."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

FINE SHIPPER IF POTATOES GO UNMARKED

Minnesota Grower Pays $1,500 for Failure to Observe Legal Rule

TAG EACH SACK

Law That Containers Must Be Marked Being Rigidly Enforced

Fargo, Sept. 24.—Farmers and potato shippers of this state are subject to fine under both state and federal laws for failure to tag or mark the weight on sacks containing potatoes. The seriousness of the situation was brought to the attention of Mr. Benton, marketing specialist at the North Dakota Agricultural college.

This warning was issued to North Dakota shippers following confirmation of rumors that potato shippers were being fined or were liable to fine for neglecting to tag their sacks with the weight. The seriousness of the situation was brought to the attention of Mr. Benton when he learned that a Minnesota shipper had been heavily fined for three violations of the rule. It is alleged that this shipper was fined the sum of $1500.

Confirmation of the existence of the law and liability to fine, Mr. Benton wired authorities at Washington, D. C. and received a reply from Mr. Dunbar, acting chief chemist of the Bureau of Chemistry, which enforces the Federal Food and Drug Act. Mr. Dunbar's reply was that potatoes in sacks of uniform quantity should be marked with a plain, conspicuous statement either by stencil on bag or by attached tag. This statement should plainly show the net weight of the contents of the sack. If sacks were not of uniform quantity, however, and obviously could not hold the same net weight of potatoes, and where content and product are invoiced and sold by weight rather than by the sack, no marking is required.

Law Is Clear

The federal law, in the above interpretation, clearly designates that all sacks of uniform capacity should be plainly marked.

Mr. R. O. Baird, state food commissioner stationed at Fargo, stated today that he had completed a long distance call to Harry Runkel, chief of the Minnesota station of the Federal Food and Drug Act, and that Mr. Runkel had confirmed the report that some shippers had been finer but he added that in the main the shippers were endeavoring to comply with the law.

Strict compliance with the law was urged by Mr. Runkel and he explained that the necessity of marking whether by stencil or by tag, all sacks which were apparently of the same size from shippers who fill sacks with widely ranging weights of potatoes. Some sacks may weigh seventy-five pounds and others 150 pounds. If sacks are of the same color and approximately the same size it is difficult to distinguish the difference in the net contents unless the sacks are tagged or marked in some manner. This is a part of the net weight law and consumers are of late clamoring for its enforcement.

Mr. Benton, the marketing specialist at the college, explains the rigid enforcement of the law as being brought about by the consumers. The larger cities who are demanding that the net weight law be strictly enforced. And the federal commissioners, in response to this demand from consumers, are compelling rigid compliance.

Tag Each Sack

"Farmers of this state will be on the safe side if they tag each sack with its weight so that no dispute can arise," said Mr. Benton. "This is not necessary, of course, where the potatoes are shipped in bulk or in such containers that there is obviously no chance for the weight to be misunderstood. But it is safer to tag all sacks and avoid any misunderstanding that might arise."

It is reported that local dealers have heard of the cases of some shippers who have been fined for non-compliance with the net weight law. E. F. Gunkelman, of the Interstate Grain & Feed Co., stated that the consumers and dealers in Chicago and other large cities were doubtless demanding the enforcement of the law and he advised all farmers, or shippers to plainly label or tag each sack with its net weight.

Greece Returns Bulgarian Land

Athens, Sept. 24.—An assurance of its desire to cultivate friendly relations with Bulgaria under the new regime, the Greek government has notified the provincial authorities that all Bulgarians interned on Aegean islands from Western Thrace

during the operations of the war with Turkey must be returned to their original homes.

The restoration of all seized properties of these interned inhabitants, on no more direct proof than the testimony of their neighbors, has also been ordered.

All Bulgarians who have fled from Western Thrace will also be permitted to return to their homes, and their properties, which have been seized by military authorities or by deserters, will be restored on the same conditions as those of the inhabitants now released from internment.

It is estimated that these orders of restitution affect between 150,000 and 200,000 persons.

MANDAN MEN AGITATE FOR CLOSED SEASON

Propose to Open Hunting Season Every Other Year—County License Suggested

Several Morton county hunters will propose to the next legislature that the prairie chicken and grouse season be closed every other year or a county hunting license bill passed, according to word from Mandan today.

The agitation has followed "hard luck" of Morton county hunters in seeking prairie chickens this year. Morton county has been known as a fine place to hunt grouse. The new bridge across the Missouri resulted in 200 automobiles' loads of people from Bismarck and other places crossing to Morton county Sunday, the Morton county hunters assert.

The automobile, enabling hunters to travel great distances, threatens the extermination of the grouse, the Morton county men claim.

The county license would keep many hunters from other counties flocking there and keep the hunting grounds for Mandan and Morton county people, they believe. Or a closed season every other year would result in an increase in the grouse, they say.

On the Bismarck side there is new agitation for the duck season being closed until October 1, because of the large number of ducks shot on the opening days before the duck is considered fine eating. One hunter decoys said the local ducks act as decoys for northern ducks which come later, and if the local ducks are scared away, it will make shooting of migratory birds more difficult.

As a special inducement to buy a range during the exhibit of the Great Majestic Range at the store of Sorenson Hardware Co., this week, every purchaser of one of these famous ranges gets his choice of two fine cooking sets free. We have a presentiment that there are going to be many fine new Majestic Ranges in the kitchens of our neighbors and friends before the week is over. The temptation to own a Majestic is irresistible when one learns the facts about Great Majestic in its relations to economy in the home; many will find themselves saying it's no use to put up with an old range any longer.

A CAMPAIGN ISSUE

W. C. Taylor of the La Moure Chronicle diagnoses accurately the significance of the action taken recently by the commissioners of Slope county who have retained William Langer to draw up a constitutional amendment raising the state's bonded debt limit sufficiently to meet all claims upon the state guaranty fund.

He sees correctly in this movement what may prove a very perplexing issue in the 1924 campaign. Every depositor of closed banks naturally will be for such an amendment; his friends and his creditors probably moved by self interest would add to the supporters.

As the months go on the "Association of Depositors of Closed Banks" will doubtless grow until the membership becomes a very active body clamoring for 100 cents on the dollar for every depositor in every insolvent bank.

It is not extravagant to suppose that some politician can be secured to run on a platform such as this: "Put Every Dollar Back In Every Depositor's Pocket." Just count the number of electors who would take off their coats and work for the consummation of such a campaign pledge. The terminal elevator shrinks to toy proportions beside such an issue and even the flour mill as a vote baiter never could be as appealing.

The Tribune is not discussing here the merits but merely the possibility of such an issue. However, the present situation should be a warning to tighten up banking restrictions, intensify examinations and throw out every safeguard in the future for the protection of depositors.

Everyone will watch with interest the activity of unpaid depositors under the guaranty act in the next campaign.

CITY ZONING

With the exception of a satisfactory settlement of the water works system, there is no more pressing problem before the citizens of Bismarck than city zoning. Of course this fits in naturally with a city plan—the first step really in arriving at an orderly scheme for the future development of the city along correct lines.

The members of this commission can perform a real service to Bismarck. Hearings should be frequent and caution taken before fixing limits that will differentiate between residential and business property.

The Capital City of all cities because it is the seat of state government should have some well defined plan for future growth. In the not very far distant future, it will be necessary to decide where a city park is to be laid out and the necessary steps taken to dedicate a plot to this very necessary part of civic development.

Zoning now will concern itself more with designation of residence sections where business cannot invade; the setting apart of other portions for manufacturing establishments and certain kinds of business which can best be handled by convenient grouping. It is a big job and must be worked out in a spirit of cooperation and be strictly unbiased to be of real value to Bismarck.

Experience of other cities who have worked out zoning plans can be studied to good advantage.

WHAT'S THE PLAY

Pennsylvania senators visit Coolidge and upon leaving the White House issue a statement that Governor Pinchot may be a presidential candidate. Politicians work in a peculiar manner their wenders to perform.

These successors to the Penrose machine refuse to be committed to either Coolidge or Pinchot, preferring watchful waiting until the delegates begin to drift one way or the other. Admirable caution quite befitting pre-convention ethics. Of course Secretary Mellon, part of the Pennsylvania organization, is committed to Coolidge, but the Pepper-Reed statement leaves the door wide open for future alliance with the Coolidge organization.

Pinchot's claim to national recognition rests upon very shallow foundations if the coal strike is considered the main prop. He secured a truce and the public will pay the price of that peace in added coal prices unless Gov. Pinchot can get it "absorbed" elsewhere, a very uncertain contingency by the way.

POISON GASES

Poison gases, thrown off by thousands of autos, are the chief cause of city dwellers' headaches, irritability, nervousness, frequent nausea and that "all in" feeling. This is the belief of Bundesen, health commissioner of Chicago.

Sounds possible. You know that a man is apt to be asphyxiated if he runs his auto engine in the garage while the doors are closed.

Fresh air and plenty of it, to recuperate us at night, is the only real antidote. Gradually our bodies will adapt themselves to auto exhaust and other city poisons—develop the necessary power of resistance.

CREATIVE ARCHITECTURE

America is developing a new type of architecture that will win world-wide popularity. It will be a modernization of the Gothic, its chief characteristic being slenderness of form and adequate lightness of structure. So comments Alexander Finta, the noted Hungarian sculptor and painter.

The skyscraper is America's greatest contribution to architecture. It is the product of the architectural theory that form should follow function, a theory originated by Louis H. Sullivan. We are a practical people, and the practical creation is artistic because it is natural.

MOSTLY EMOTIONAL

Mrs. Eiselin of Asran, Switzerland, has divorced her husband three times and married him four times in the last eight years. They're still young and you may read more about them later.

We are the playthings of our emotions. Human nature as a rule is 90 per cent emotional, 5 per cent intellectual.

DAIRY COW AS LEGAL TENDER

Capper's Farmer, in discussing banks in relation to the agricultural situation, says that "banks have it within their power largely to mold the agricultural practices of a community or state. A bank with vision, knowledge and the desire to serve its community, can exert a surprising influence for good."

The paper then tells of a bank in one of the Northwest states which, in a little more than a year, has financed the placing of more than 2,000 grade dairy cows and purchased bulls in the state on terms advantageous to the farmer. The president, the paper asserts, has made dairy cows legal tender in the state.

The paper perhaps unintentionally, conveys the impression that the action of this bank is an isolated case. But such inference would be far from the truth. There are hundreds of banks in the Northwest, which are working on the same principle. It is not a new policy with many of them either, although a large number of banks have been converted to the dairy cow theory in farming during recent years.

North Dakota banks today are almost a unit in the dairy cow legal tender. And these banks are doing much, as Capper's Farmer says, in bringing prosperity to their communities. The North Dakota farmer today, with banker co-operation in particular and business co-operation in general, is building slowly perhaps but surely the foundation for a more permanent agriculture.

The State needs no better legal tender than the dairy cow—Fargo Forum.

THE CHEERFUL PAST.

Nothing gives one a more youthful view of life than a long talk with an old person. Most young and middle-aged people are so concerned about the future that they don't think much of the really important time of life, but the old person, who has tried all seasons, likes to go back to his youth and talk about the days when he climbed trees, fought his playmates with corn cobs, raised hornets' nests and played wolf-over-the-ribs. When you sit down by the lonely old man or a long talk you may expect to hear of rheumatism, of buried hopes and of an unkind world, but you will be fooled. He will entertain you with stories of candy pullings, soon hunts and hay rides, and if he finds you a good listener he will take you back to the bonfire of the following day, hoping that you will happen along again. When you want a cheerful view of life you should talk with someone who has reached the happy age when he feels that he hasn't time to curse anybody, and with dim eyes sees good in everything.—Milwaukee Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Clatter, clatter, clatter! Clippety, clippety, clippety, clippety! It was Nancy and Nick and Mister Gallop on their ponies after Piggy Badger.

Piggy had a habit, a very bad habit, of eating his neighbors, which was not only impolite, but unkind as well. He had a long, rusty snout that could dig up "most anything!" And an appetite that could enjoy eating "most anything!" And a stomach that could hold "most anything!"

So no wonder the plains folk and mountain folk up and told on him. Mister Gallop had clicked his tongue on his teeth and said how awful it was and that he'd attend to Piggy at once. And as soon as the committee had gone, the three of them started off. "And now you know all about it."

Pretty soon they came to the plain where Piggy lived. No one was positive just where it was, but it was known that he had his home under the ground.

"Just look for an extra large doorway, children," said Mister Gallop, "for Piggy's a fat fellow, and sly, and most likely he has hidden his house under one of these grass patches or bits of sage-brush, or a rock, maybe."

Well, they looked and they looked and they looked, all three of them; but although they found a whole town of prairie dog houses, and a whole hill of ant-houses as big as a washing tub, and Mrs. Meadow Leg's nest in a low bush, and Johnny Jack Rabbit's house under the willow tangle near the creek, and Mister Burrowing Owl's hole under the sand, nary a sign did they see of old Piggy Wiggy Badger and his sharp nose.

They even got off their ponies and looked. But it didn't do a bit of good. And they got as tired as anything.

"Oh, pshaw!" pouted Nancy, sitting down on a little hill of grass. Just a little low hill about as big as a hassock.

Mister Gallop lit his pipe so he could think better, and put his foot on the grass hill beside Nancy. His foot with a big boot and a sharp spur on it!

Suddenly the hill gave a jump and yelled out, "Ouch!" And it started to run like seventy, spilling Nancy off on the sand.

And that was Piggy Badger as large as life. Mister Gallop grabbed his lasso and caught him in two seconds. And such a lecture as he got! But he promised to be good, so they let him go.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

It has been a week since I wrote you before, little Marquise, and such a hectic week.

In the first place Jack went to New York with Harry Ellington and when he came back he informed me he was sitting on the rim of the world—whatever that may mean. He insisted on taking me out to the smartest place in town for dinner and to dance and when I arrived there I found Harry Ellington and Ruth.

I'm really very fond of Ruth, little Marquise, for with all her foolish vanity she is a real woman and I believe Harry Ellington has had a great deal to do with her flirting propensities. I do not like him at all.

That night Harry said something rather ugly to Ruth to the effect that she was the most conspicuous woman in the room in her very décolleté gown and her bobbed, henna-colored hair.

I thought she was very lovely and I'm sure that Jack did, too, but poor Ruth's eyes filled with tears. I expect I was rather interfering in what was none of my business but I could not help saying, "I think Ruth is much better looking and much less conspicuous than that moving picture actress, Edith Chapman, who is sitting over there and I notice you have danced with her twice this evening and had a very beautiful look on your face while doing it."

Jack kicked me under the table and Harry gave me a furious glance but I didn't care. I thought it was horrid of Harry Ellington to say those things to his wife, especially as he had been flirting outrageously with the Chapman girl all the evening.

Just at that moment Walter Burke strode over and I was very glad of it. Notwithstanding Harry Ellington's glum glances, he asked Ruth to dance. Ruth was about to refuse but I gave her a look which told her to go on and dance with him. Perhaps I was all wrong, little Marquise, but I just hated to think that Harry Ellington could go into all sorts of unknown paths picking primroses and then come back expecting to find such a gorgeous flosser as Ruth hiding away from mortal eyes. I have never yet known a woman who really enjoys it "to blush unseen."

"I can't understand what Ruth sees in that man," said Harry viciously.

"He probably tells her her gown is exquisite and that she is beautiful, instead of calling her gawky, conspicuous and her hair unnatural."

"Why, Leslie, I never knew you to scratch like a cat before."

"Well," I said, thoroughly indignant, "I never yet have believed that it took two entirely different kind of sauces to make both the goose and the gander palatable."

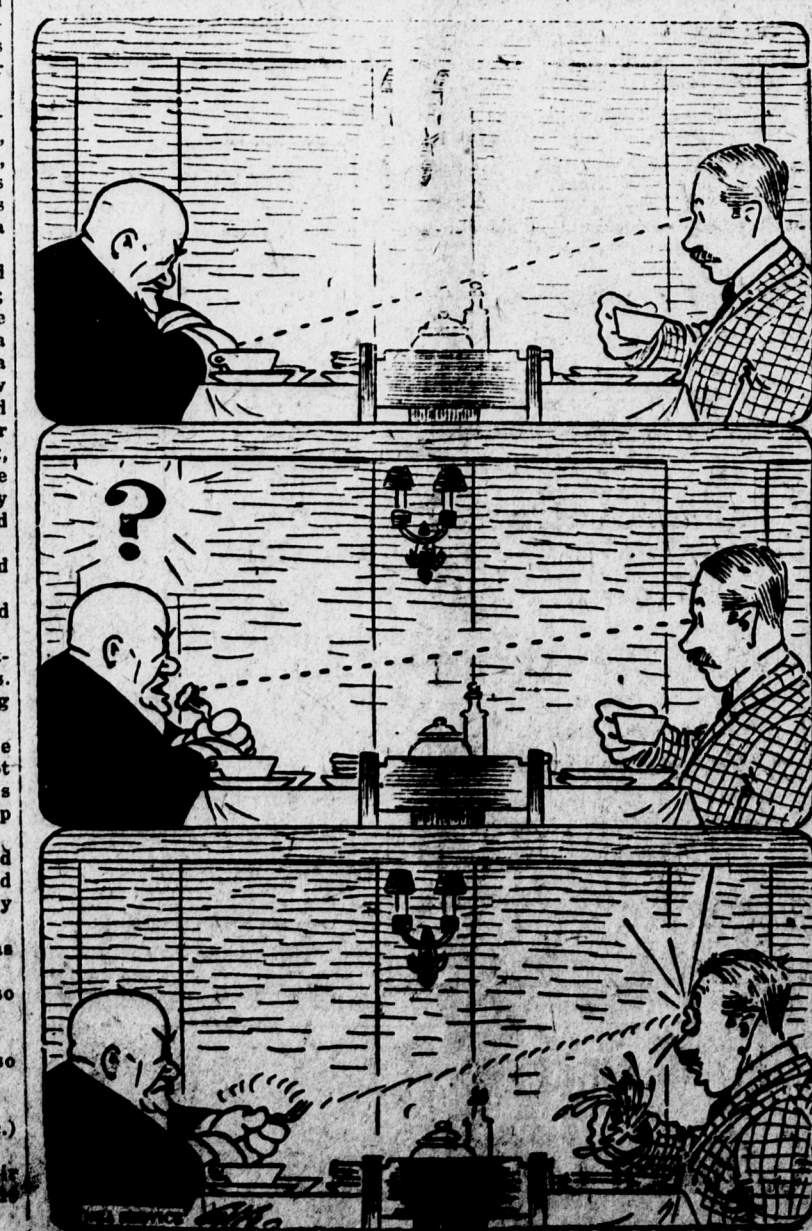

"Very clever," Mrs. Prescott, but rather radical, don't you think?"

In saying this he laid his hand on my arm and I jerked away impetuously. In some way my pearls, which I foolishly had been wearing, wound around my arm, caught on the chair back and the first thing I knew the string had broken and they were scattered all over the floor.

"LOOSE BALL" GAME TAUGHT AT MICHIGAN

Yost Drills His Men in New Style of Play; Gives up Safe Style of Play

GET PASSING GAME

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Michigan is preparing to play what is technically known as the "loose ball" game of football if the practice of the first two weeks is any indication of the style of game the followers of the veteran coach Yost will present on the field. No Michigan eleven in the days of Yost has had the practice in handling a ball all positions that the present eleven has received in the comparatively short time it has been at work.

Yost has been known for years as a conservative, as a man who "played the game safe." Asked if he expected to assume a different style of game if the opposition afforded him the loose bounding ball, the veteran mentor replied that his team would play the game as they found it, loose ball game, kicking game, running game, any way to advance the pigskin.

As far as practice indicates, however, the slogan, "Fall on the ball" is a lost command on Ferry Field. While some slight practice is being given in the art of leaping through space and completely smothering a loose ball, far more practice is being given in the art throwing the body so the ball may be seized and the player roll to his feet ready for a dash goalwards. To perfect the backs and ends in this department they are lined up ten feet apart and a back must catch the rolling ball, and recover his feet.

The men also are being trained at picking up a ball while running at full speed, and to gather up without stopping a ball bounding from the ground.

Added to this game with a loose ball, the squad is being intensively drilled in the catching of forward passes.

Yost's 1923 squad, which in its practice thus far has combined nimbleness of foot, fingers and mental faculties may be in part responsible for the appearance that the Wolverine football team is turning from the conservative to loose ball game but the practice indicates members of Yost's squad will know when to do with a bounding ball, if some opponent or some companion happens to be luckless enough to allow the spheroid to slip through the fingers.

Puzzling Plays

It is possible for two runners to be retired because they have been hit.

After Americans

With a string of victories over Greco-Roman mat kings to his credit, Javier Ochoa, Spanish wrestling champion, is turning his attention to the United States. Recently he has been performing in Mexico, meeting and throwing all comers.

by the same battered ball? This query is the result of a news item recently published which read:

"Old plays have been more numerous than even this year. The champion performance of the lot, it is asserted, was a double play in which no fielder touched the ball. It happened thusly: A battered ball hit a runner going to third and then careered off and bounded against a runner on his way to second and under the rules both were out for being hit by a batted ball."

Can it be done?

THE INTERPRETATION. It is an impossibility for two runners to be retired on the same batted ball, because of being hit by same.

In the situation described there were runners on first and second. Both were trying to advance on a ball apparently hit toward shortstop.

The moment the batted ball struck the runner going to third, that runner was out for being hit by a batted ball. The moment he was hit, play was automatically suspended and no runners could advance unless forced to do so to make room for the batsman.

The fact that the runner going from first to second was hit, receives no consideration.

The runner on first who was hit is not out, but is entitled to advance to second, in order to make room for the batsman, who gets a hit when the base runner was hit by his batted ball and is therefore entitled to first.

Sombody was kidding when they labeled such a happening a freak double play.

PRINCETON HAS MANY ROOKIES IN LINE-UP

Coach Roper Places Confidence in New Men Because of Graduation of Stars

QUARTERS BACK

Princeton, Sept. 24.—Coach Roper has begun work on his football squad, somewhat depleted of stars through graduations last June, but filled with strong material. The pre-season training grind is starting a week later than last year, but Roper believes that he will be able to whip a great eleven into shape by the time the first big game comes around.

Princeton must develop linemen to replace Captain Mel Dickenson, "Pink" Baker, Ollie Alford and Howard Gray, who left Old Nassau last

Like Ray Kelly is the hero of his "game." And no wonder. He's named for a regular big league team—and was named winner of the New York Herald. He can throw the ball both with and without his right arm to perfection. Here he is in his uniform. Will you get your life the same all at once and take notice.

June. The backfield will take care of itself, the only serious loss from last year's varsity being Jack Cleaves. Charles Caldwell and Harvey Emery, both of whom played well at defensive halfback last year, have returned. The new Captain, "Whoops" Snively, first string lineman as well as a backfield star, probably will be coached to command Princeton's aerial attacks.

"Bruno" Hills, the all-around athlete, a 200-pound tackle, has given some promise as a punter and may be pressed into such service. "Peck" Euwer, a fleet offensive man, and "Mudge" Crum, who scored Princeton's touchdown against Harvard last year, probably will gain regular backfield positions. Bob Beattie, the New York boy, whose great run against Yale last year set the cheering sections wild, also will return.

All of last year's quarters, John Gorman, Bob Dinsmore and Willie Wingate, veterans, and Dan Caulkins, freshman star, are ready. Howard Gray was the only one lost by graduation. Ken Smith, the other, whose drop-kicking proved so valuable against Yale and Chicago, will be at the right wing. "Buzz" Stout and "Sax" Tillson will battle for the position left vacant by Gray.

SISLER HOPES TO BE BACK NEXT YEAR

Thinks Eye Sight Will be Improved Enough so That He Can Play

WILL BE MANAGER

Eyes Are Gradually Improving Says Veteran First Sacker of St. Louis

St. Louis, Sept. 24.—George Sisler, star first baseman for the St. Louis Americans, who has been unable to appear in the lineup this year on account of eye trouble, hopes to be able to play again next year, and if the condition of his eyes is satisfactory he will be appointed manager of the team, according to reliable reports in sporting circles here.

Sisler has declared that his vision is improving gradually. This has been noticeable in his preparation for opening the 1924 season in his regular position.

Sisler's enforced retirement, which was one of the big disappointments of the season, is believed to be responsible for the unfavorable standing of the Browns as compared with last year, when they fought the New York Yankees a hot battle for the pennant. His absence is believed by many fans to have had a demoralizing effect on the playing of the Browns early in the season.

Jimmy Austin, coach and utility player, has been named pilot of the team, but probably with the understanding that should Sisler be in condition next year, he would be appointed manager with Austin assistant manager.

STYMIE GIVES MARSTON WIN

Philadelphia Takes National Amateur Golf Title

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Setting a record for long final matches in the national amateur golf championship, Max Marston of Philadelphia Saturday won the title from Jess Sweetser of New York, defending champion, on the 38th hole by steady golf and three stymies which he laid the former champion on the last four holes.

Sweetser did not maintain the pace he had held up to, although he was steady and scored 75 in the morning, but he slipped four strokes over par on the third nine and let Marston get a lead of two up at the 26th hole after he had kept the Philadelphian down or square for 24 holes.

During the third nine, Sweetser dubbed one drive, was not very good with a couple of others popped short with two mashies, and shanked a couple in addition to missing some likely putts, and from two up at the end of the morning round he was two down turning into the home stretch. The receding champion made a good struggle during most of the final nine, squaring the match at the 29th and even getting one up at the 34th, but then the combination of unbeatable golf and stymies, added to slips by Sweetser, allowed Marston to win.

PIRATES OUT OF NATIONAL PENNANT RACE

Reds Gain on New York, But Still are Four Games Behind the Leaders

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Cincinnati advanced in the National League race Sunday by defeating Brooklyn 5 to 1, while New York and Pittsburgh were idle.

The Reds now are the only contenders against New York for the flag, for if the Pirates won all their games while the Giants won theirs the Pirates still would be half a game behind. The Reds are now four to the bad. The Giants need four victories to insure the world series.

Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the National League, 4 to 1. Aldridge and Osborne holding the Phillies to three hits. Boston won a double header from St. Louis.

In the American League Cleveland and Washington split a double-header. Other games were not scheduled.

Do You Find Shopping a Pleasure?

Some folks do. They're the modern shoppers—the ones who know just what they want — how much to pay—exactly where they will find the right goods at the right prices.

They're the ones who realize the value — to them — of advertising. They make a practice of reading the advertisements in the newspapers.

Sitting at ease in their homes, they formulate their shopping programs.

They note the things that interest them particularly and plan to cut out waste motion, unnecessary steps and lost time.

Planned in this fashion, shopping loses its terrors. It no longer leaves you jazzy and jaded. It starts you off with a definite objective and brings you home with a feeling of something accomplished.

If you haven't been reading the advertisements, try out the method. It's a good one.

"LOOSE BALL" GAME TAUGHT AT MICHIGAN

GET PASSING GAME

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 24.—(By the Associated Press)—Michigan is preparing to play what is technically known as the "loose ball" game of football if the practice of the first two weeks is any indication of the style of game the followers of the veteran coach Yost will present on the field. No Michigan eleven in the days of Yost has had the practice in handling a ball in all positions that the present eleven has received in the comparatively short time it has been at work.

Yost has been known for years as a conservative, as a man who "played the game safe." Asked if he expected to assume a different style of game if the opposition afforded him the loose handling ball, the veteran mentor replied that his team would play the game as they found it, loose ball game, kicking game, running game, any way to advance the pigskin.

As far as practice indicates, however, the slogan, "Fall on the ball" is a lost command on Ferry Field. While some slight practice is being given in the art of leaping through space and completely smothering a loose ball, far more practice is being given in the art of throwing the body so the ball may be seized and the player roll to his feet ready for a dash goalwards. To perfect the backs and ends in this department they are lined up ten feet apart and a back must catch the rolling ball, and recover his feet.

The men also are being trained at picking up a ball while running at full speed, and to gather up without losing a ball bounding from the ground.

Added to this game with a loose ball, the squad is being intensively drilled in the catching of forward passes. Yost's 1923 squad, which is probably thus far has combined niceness of foot, fingers and mental facilities may be in part responsible for the appearance that the Wolverine football team is turning from the conservative to the loose ball game. But the coach will know what to do with a leading ball, if some opponent or some companion happens to be careless enough to allow the sphere to pass through the fingers.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY Is it possible for two runners to be retired because they have been hit

After Americans

With a string of victories over Greco-Roman mat kings to his credit, Javier Ochoa, Spanish wrestling champion, is turning his attention to the United States. Recently he has been performing in Mexico, meeting and throwing all comers.

by the same battled ball? This query is the result of a news item recently published which reads:

"Odd plays have been more numerous than even this year. The champion performance of the lot, it is asserted, was a double play in which no fielder touched the ball. It happened thusly: A battled ball hit a runner going to third and then caromed off and bounded against a runner on his way to second and under the rules both were out for being hit by a battled ball."

Can it be done?

THE INTERPRETATION. It is an impossibility for two runners to be retired on the same battled ball, because of being hit by same. In the situation described there were runners on first and second. Both were trying to advance on a ball apparently hit toward shortstop.

The moment the battled ball struck the runner going to third, that runner was out for being hit by a battled ball. The moment he was hit, play was automatically suspended and no runners could advance unless forced to do so to make room for the batsman.

The fact that the runner going from first to second was hit, receives no consideration.

The runner on first, who was hit is not out, but is entitled to advance to second, in order to make room for the batsman, who gets a hit when the base runner was hit by his battled ball and is therefore entitled to first.

Sombody was kidding when they labeled such a happening a freak double play.

PRINCETON HAS MANY ROOKIES IN LINE-UP

Coch Roper Places Confidence in New Men Because of Graduation of Stars

QUARTERS BACK

Princeton, Sept. 24.—Coach Roper has begun work on his football squad, somewhat depleted of stars through graduations last June, but filled with strong material. The pre-season training ground is starting a week later than last year, but Roper believes that he will be able to whip a great eleven into shape by the time the first big game comes around.

Princeton must develop linemen to replace Captain Mel Dickenson, "Pink" Baker, Ollie Alford and Howard Gray, who left Old Nassau.

Jane. The backfield will take care of itself, the only serious loss from last year's varsity being Jack Cleaves. Charles Caldwell and Harvey Emery, both of whom played well at defensive halfback last year, have returned. The new Captain, "Whoops" Snively, first string lineman as well as a backfield star, probably will be coached to command Princeton's aerial attacks.

"Bruno" Hills, the all-around athlete, a 200-pound tackle, has given some promise as a punter and may be pressed into such service. "Pock" Burver, a fleet offensive man, and "Midge" Crum, who scored Princeton's touchdown against Harvard last year, probably will gain regular backfield positions. Bob Beattie, the New York boy, whose great run against Yale last year set the cheering sections wild, also will return.

All of last year's quarters, John Gorman, Bob Dinsmore and Willie Wingate, veterans, and Dan Cushman, freshman star, are ready. Howard Gray was the only end lost by graduation. Ken Smith, the other, whose drop-kicking proved so valuable against Yale and Chicago, will be at the right wing. "Boss" Stout and "Sax" Tillson will battle for the position left vacant by Gray.

SISLER HOPES TO BE BACK NEXT YEAR

Thinks Eye Sight Will be Improved Enough so That He Can Play

WILL BE MANAGER

Eyes Are Gradually Improving Says Veteran First Sacker of St. Louis

St. Louis, Sept. 24.—George Sisler, star first baseman for the St. Louis Americans, who has been unable to appear in the lineup this year on account of eye trouble, hopes to be able to play again next year, and if the condition of his eyes is satisfactory he will be appointed manager of the team, according to reliable reports in sporting circles here.

Sisler has declared that his vision is improving gradually. This has been noticeable in his preparation for opening the 1924 season in his regular position.

Sisler's enforced retirement, which was one of the big disappointments of the season, is believed to be responsible for the unfavorable standing of the Browns as compared with last year, when they fought the New York Yankees a hot battle for the pennant. His absence is believed by many fans to have had a demoralizing effect on the playing of the Browns early in the season.

Jimmy Austin, coach and utility player, has been named part of the team, but probably with the understanding that should Sisler be in condition next year, he would be appointed manager with Austin assistant manager.

STYMIE GIVES MARSTON WIN

Philadelphia Takes National Amateur Golf Title

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Setting a record for long final matches in the national amateur golf championship, Max Marston of Philadelphia Saturday won the title from Jess Sweetser of New York, club defending champion, on the 35th hole by steady golf and three stymies which he laid the former champion on the last four holes.

Sweetser did not maintain the pace he had held up to, although he was steady and scored 75 in the morning, but he slipped four strokes over par on the third nine and let Marston get a led of two up at the 25th hole after he had kept the Philadelphia down or square for 24 holes. During the third nine, Sweetser dubbed one drive, was not very good with a couple of others popped short with two mashies and shanked a couple in addition to missing some likely putts, and from two up at the end of the morning round he was two down turning in the home stretch. The preceding season's major a good struggle during most of the final nine, squaring the match at the 25th and even getting one up at the 24th, but then the combination of unbeatible golf and stymies, added to slips by Sweetser, allowed Marston to win.

PIRATES OUT OF NATIONAL PENNANT RACE

Reds Gain on New York, But Still are Four Games Behind the Leaders

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Cincinnati advanced in the National League race Sunday by defeating Brooklyn 5 to 1, while New York and Pittsburgh were idle.

The Reds now are the only contenders against New York for the flag, for if the Pirates won all their games while the Giants won theirs the Pirates still would be half a game behind. The Reds are now four to the bad. The Giants need four victories to insure the world series.

Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the National League, 4 to 1. Aldridge and Osborns leading the Phillies to three hits. Boston won a double header from St. Louis.

In the American League Cleveland and Washington split a double-header. Other games were not scheduled.

Do You Find Shopping a Pleasure?

Some folks do. They're the modern shoppers—the ones who know just what they want—how much to pay—exactly where they will find the right goods at the right prices.

They're the ones who realize the value—to them—of advertising.

They make a practice of reading the advertisements in the newspapers.

Sitting at ease in their homes, they formulate their shopping programs.

They note the things that interest them particularly and plan to cut out waste motion, unnecessary steps and lost time.

Planned in this fashion, shopping loses its terrors. It no longer leaves you jazzy and jaded. It starts you off with a definite objective and brings you home with a feeling of something accomplished.

If you haven't been reading the advertisements, try out the method. It's a good one.

THIRD PARTY NOT LOOMING IN INDIANA

People Apparently Are Sticking to the Republican and Democratic Parties

APPROVE COOLIDGE

Much Praise Heard For New President and Little Talk
Is Heard of Ford

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 24.—The people of Indiana are sticking to the old political parties. Neither politicians nor casual observers here expect to see a third party bud and bloom to victory in the 1924 presidential campaign.

This is one of the few middle western states in which an attempt to amalgamate the farmers and laborers in one political unit has failed almost as soon as the movement was born. There is more activity among the farmers as a class than a few years ago, through the Farm Bureau and similar organizations, and an active hand has been taken in public affairs. However, the farmers' organizations are devoted chiefly to devising ways to improve farming, to search out new methods of making money out of the soil and to co-operate along established lines.

The 1924 battle here is expected to be between the Republicans and Democrats, with opinion at this time pretty well divided among political observers as to the outcome. There is a noticeable absence of discussion of Henry Ford. Those who do discuss him usually refer to an interview published in a national magazine in which Mr. Ford was quoted as saying he believed Mr. Harding, then president, was meeting the situation about as well as any one could meet it.

MAKING GOOD IMPRESSION. President Coolidge, if one may take the word of politicians and persons interested in public affairs, is making a good impression by his refusal to place himself actively in the race for the 1924 nomination and by his reticence. It is generally agreed, however, that the test for the new president will come with the assembling of Congress, and that an affirmative position in public affairs must be taken by him before the winter had passed.

There is a new factor in politics in this state—the Ku Klux Klan. It is real and potent. Although disapproved by the majority of men in high public office and high position, the Klan is credited with having beaten two men for state office in the last election. One of them was eligible for membership in the Klan under its rules but he spurned an invitation to join and drew the wrath of the organization upon him.

Klan Not Guilty. There has not been guilty of violence nor has it operated entirely in secret. A weekly paper is published by the state headquarters. An authorized emblem often is seen on motor cars while others bear an American flag on the radiator—counted a symbol of Klan membership. Some stores openly bid for Klan business. It is agreed, however, that the Klan has had little effect on any established business, though owned by persons not eligible to Klan membership. What the Klan may do in the next political campaign is a matter of conjecture among politicians.

An official Republican state committee declared his belief that there would never be a farmer-labor alignment in this state. The illustration he used was this: In two or three communities of the state which he visited township school houses were erected. Union carpenters and masons drove to the school site in automobiles, did eight hours work for eight hours pay and drove back to the city, while the farmers who paid for the school house kept on toiling. He declares it was impossible to think of a successful farmer-labor alliance in this state.

The post-war readjustment period has left the future of politics uncertain. Republicans profess to believe that the year 1924 will find this state again in the Republican column. Here the World Court and League of Nations still appear to be questions of moment. There is very strong sentiment manifest both against the United States entering into any league with foreign nations and those who firmly adhere to the Wilsonian policies.

Parcels Swamp Philippine's Postal Service

MANILA, Sept. 24.—Collect parcel post packages to the amount of $515,000 were sent in 1922 from the United States to the Philippines; the business has grown so in the present year that its total for 1924 is estimated at $5,000,000.

This would mean the handling and delivery of something like 1,000,000 separate parcels, and the Philippine postal authorities are wondering how they can meet these demands. Increased postal appropriations will be necessary, and the idea has been advanced in some quarters that the collect service should be discontinued.

Watch Winds Itself; Can't Over Wind

London, Sept. 24.—British inventors have perfected a self-winding wrist-watch. The constant movement of the hand of the wearer effects the winding by means of an oscillating slide in the movement fitted with bearings which, it is claimed, prevent over-winding.

The watch, the inventors say, will stand the heaviest day's work.

THEY'RE SHOOTING FOR UNCLE SAM

These nine men are America's crack shots. They make up the United States international rifle team now basking away at the bull's-eye Camp Perry, O., in their fight to retain the Argentine trophy. Uncle Sam won it in Switzerland in 1921 and retained it last year in Italy. No foreign teams have come to the United States, so this year's team is shooting against score. Seated from left to right are, Major J. K. Boles, U. S. A.; Commander C. T. Osburn, U. S. N.; Major L. W. T. Walker, U. S. M. C., who is the team captain; Commander W. E. Wilson, U. S. N., team adjutant and quartermaster, and Walter R. Stokes of Washington, who is defending his title as world champion rifle shot. Standing are Lawrence Nusslein, Washington; Sergeant Morris Fisher, U. S. M. C.; Private Dennis Fenton, U. S. A., and E. N. Moor, Jr., of San Francisco.

RETAIL COAL PRICE IS TOO HIGH IN N. D.

Governor Advises That Consumers Buy Coal Cooperatively by Carloads

PROFIT EQUALS COST

Fears That High Price Will Cause N. D. Coal Fields to Be Undeveloped

When asked today in regard to any recent development with reference to the retail price of lignite to coal, Governor Nestor stated that he had heard from most of the coal producing companies to whom he wrote and that he discovers that the price of screened lump lignite coal, F. O. B. the cars at the mine, runs from $2.60 to $3.00 per ton, the price at most of the mines being $3.00. To this there must be added the freight to the point where the coal is sold, and the cost of hauling, in order to arrive at the basic price in each community. As an illustration: the price for screened lump lignite at Wilton is $3 per ton in carload lots; the freight from there to one of the principal cities of the Red River is $1.46, making the cost of the coal on the tracks in this Red River Valley city $4.46. If you then add to that the cost of hauling which is about sixty cents per ton, the total cost of the lignite coal is $5.06. This coal has been had in that city this summer at $7.50 per ton, which would leave a profit of $2.44 or almost 50 per cent of the cost of the coal and nearly as much as the coal cost on the railroad tracks at the mine.

The governor feels that this profit is too large and that it is unfair thus to discriminate against the producer of our own state. We need to develop our North Dakota resources. We want to keep as much of our money at home as we possibly can, and one of the most effective ways of doing this is for every citizen of North Dakota to burn lignite coal. The experience of all of the cities in the western half of the state shows that this can be done and that the people will save money by so doing, but this development will be hindered and discouraged if an unreasonable profit is charged by the retailers in the eastern half of the state. The governor has talked with some of these retailers and they tell him that if the people will order the coal in advance and agree to take it directly from the railroad car and haul it to their homes so that they will not need to load it into and out of their coal sheds, that they will reduce the margin of profit very greatly. Where the dealers are willing to do this, the citizens ought to take advantage of it and where the dealers are unwilling to do this and still insist upon the unreasonable profit, the consumers should combine and order the coal from the mine in carload lots when they can secure it at a rate of from $2.60 to $3.00 per ton, F. O. B. the cars, and must merely add the freight to that cost.

MODERN DAIRY BARN BURNS

New Salem, N. D., Sept. 24.—The dairy barn of Dick Wilkens of Youngtown, was burned to the ground Tuesday night with a complete loss of all milking machinery and other contents. The fire was discovered about 9:45 in the hay loft by Mr. Wilkens who with the assistance of Mrs. Wilkens attempted to extinguish the fire by carrying water but to no avail.

About sixty tons of millet hay, some feed, the milking machine, line shafts, cream separator, gas-line engine, harness and sixty other items were lost.

All the livestock was removed from the burning barn. The barn was a modern 40x50 foot structure of modern design with cement floors, stanchions, drinking cups for all the cows. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

EQUAL RIGHTS PAGEANT TO BE PRESENTED

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 24.—The Garden of the Gods, Colorado Springs, has been chosen for the first reproduction of the equal rights ceremonial pageant. This is to be presented in every state in the union today in connection with the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the holding of the first equal rights convention in America, according to an announcement made by the Colorado committee of the National Woman's Party here. The first equal rights party met at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848.

The presentation in this pageant is a part of the National Woman's Party campaign for the proposed Lucretia Mott amendment to the United States constitution "Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."

GYROSCOPE TO ABOLISH ROLL OF WARSHIPS

Instrument Would Enable Gunners to Have Better
Success with Shots

Chatham, England, Sept. 24.—Important experiments are being made here with a gyroscopic instrument designed to abolish the rolling of warships. The apparatus, for which great things are claimed by the inventor, has been fitted to a ship in the Chatham Dockyard, and a novel method has been employed during the preliminary tests. Platforms have been constructed enabling parties of men to run on and off the ship, which lies moored in one of the basins. In this way artificial rolling is set up for, as every nautical man knows, a vessel is surprisingly sensitive to the movement of a number of people from one side to the other.

Thorough tests are to be made with the gyroscope at sea. It is generally agreed that if the invention proves a success it will have an almost revolutionary effect on naval warfare, because one of the greatest difficulties which the naval gunner has to encounter at present is the continual rolling of the ship. By the introduction of large bilge keels and other improvements in design, naval architects have been able to reduce the rolling very considerably during the last few years, but many difficulties still present themselves. The modern battleship is so enormously heavy that, once she starts rolling, a long time elapses before she recovers her normal balance.

Spend Your Money in North Dakota

North Dakota coal can be used exclusively in North Dakota. It is the most economical fuel available and has proven satisfactory for domestic and industrial purposes. Buy it!

MONEY SPENT ON NORTH DAKOTA COAL MEANS DEVELOPMENT OF NORTH DAKOTA.

Money spent on eastern coal means development of eastern states.

North Dakota coal is being used exclusively by farmers, city people, stores, flats, power plants, mills, factories, etc., in western North Dakota. The entire state, as well as parts of Minnesota and South Dakota should use it.

U. S. RECOMMENDS IT!

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
BUREAU OF MINES
WASHINGTON

September 7, 1923.

Mr. Stanley Washburn, President.
North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association.
Dear Sir:

"At this time when it seems probable that the supply of anthracite for the head of the lakes will be below normal the householder in the Northwest as well as in the anthracite using East, must carefully consider the various other available fuels. Our American users in nearly every community have a choice between poor fuels, as is the case in many parts of the world. Populations thrive and grow strong in climates as severe as ours with no better fuel than straw and little of that. In Minnesota and the Dakotas many of our people will make a choice between bituminous coal and lignite and where available, each should be tried. It is very much to the advantage of a community to develop a nearby supply of fuel and as a national conservation movement long hauls of fuel from distant fields are to be discouraged. It is therefore, desirable to use lignite in lignite areas so far as possible and only by trial can the advantage and relative economies be discovered. The bureau of mines is interested in the development of all our fuel resources and hopes that lignite will be tried and will find its true field of usefulness."

Yours very truly,
O. P. HOOD,
Chief Mechanical Engineer,
U. S. Bureau of Mines.

The North Dakota coal user who claims he cannot use North Dakota coal to advantage has not given it a fair trial. Ask your dealer for booklet on how to burn lignite. It is furnished him free for his customers by lignite operators. It gives instructions.

Buy North Dakota Coal and Help Develop a North Dakota Industry

Lignite users should put in at least a part of their winter supply during September. Every tone of lignite sold now means an additional ton shipped into Minnesota and South Dakota when cold weather arrives. That brings more money into North Dakota to pay miners' wages, taxes and allow lignite operators some return on their investment. Minnesota and South Dakota orders cannot be filled if North Dakotans delay purchasing their coal until the last minute.

The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association is purely a development organization seeking to extend the market for North Dakota coal. It renders all co-operation possible to dealers and to the public. It will appreciate reports of any lack of service on the part of operators or dealers, or failure of lignite to give satisfaction. While not affiliated with retail dealers, the Association will be glad to use its influence to adjust prices in any section where the retail price of lignite coal is considered unfair to the public or to the industry as a whole.
